Chapter 1 - The Study of American Government

The Study of American Government

ANSWER: Participatory or direct democracy is a government in which all or most citizens participate directly.

· Representative democracy is a government in which leaders obtain authority to make decisions by winning a competitive struggle.

84. Explain the primary justifications for representative democracy.

ANSWER: Limits of time, information, energy, interest, and expertise make it impractical for the people to decide on policies. It is not impractical for them to choose between competing leadership groups.

Democracy can lead to bad decisions, because people often decide large issues on the basis of fleeting passions and in response to popular demagogues.

85. Identify the requirements for representative democracy to work.

ANSWER: There must be an opportunity for genuine competition of leadership.

- · Individuals and parties must be free to run for office.
- · There needs to be freedom of speech and press.
- · Voters must perceive that a meaningful choice exists.

86. Identify and briefly describe the basic premises of the five viewpoints of political power discussed by the text.

ANSWER: · Class View: Derived from the theories of Karl Marx, the class view holds that governments are dominated by business interests.

- Power Elite View: American democracy is dominated by a few top leaders who do not hold elective office (military officers, labor union leaders, media executives, and so on).
- · Bureaucratic View: Power is concentrated in the hands of appointed bureaucratic officials who manage the government.
- · Pluralist View: Power is shared among many institutions and shared so widely that no single group can dominate politics.
- · Creedal Passion View: Morally impassioned elites drive important political changes.

87. Identify the four things that affect what is on the political agenda, according to the text.

ANSWER: · Shared political values

- · The weight of custom and tradition
- · The impact of events such as wars, terrorist attacks, and severe or sustained economic downturns that alters our sense of the proper role of government
- · The way political elites think and talk about politics

88. Identify the government institutions whose influence on agenda setting has become especially important. Explain.

ANSWER: The courts can make decisions that force the hand of the other branches of government.

- · The bureaucracy has acquired significance because it is now a source of political innovation. It has become a source of policy proposals as well as implementers of the proposals that become law.
- · In the 1960s the Senate became an incubator for developing new policies and building national constituencies.
- 89. Politics produces both cost and benefits. Your text discusses four types of politics based on how cost and benefits are distributed. Explain the four types of politics covered in the text.

ANSWER: · Majoritarian politics: A policy in which almost everybody benefits and almost everybody pays.

- · Interest group politics: A policy in which one small group benefits and another small group pays.
- · Client politics. A policy in which one small group benefits and almost everybody pays.
- · Entrepreneurial politics: A policy in which almost everybody benefits and a small group pays.

90. Explain the significance of log-rolling on the legislative process.

ANSWER: A legislator supports a proposal favored by another in return for support of his or her own proposal. Trading votes in this way attracts the support of members of Congress to form majority coalitions.
