35) Who are an organization's stakeholders and why are they important?

Answer: An organization's stakeholders are the various groups and individuals who affect and are affected by a business. Examples include employees, suppliers, customers, and investors. Stakeholders' interest often conflict which is why they are important to an organization. These conflicts force entrepreneurs to identify their stakeholders and to consider the ways in which entrepreneurs will deal with them.

When making decisions, entrepreneurs often must balance the needs and demands of a company's stakeholders. They should do this, knowing that whatever the final decision is, not all groups will be satisfied.

Learning Obj: 2-1 Define business ethics and describe the three levels of ethical standards.

AACSB: Ethical Understanding and Reasoning

36) What is ethics and how is it different from social responsibility?

Answer: Ethics is a branch of philosophy that studies and creates theories about the basic nature of right and wrong, duty, obligation, and virtue. Ethical behavior is doing what is "right" as opposed to what is "wrong." On the other hand, social responsibility involves how an organization responds to the needs of the many elements in society, including shareholders, lenders, employees, consumers, governmental agencies, and the environment. While both ethics and social responsibility set behavioral boundaries for decision makers, social responsibility refers to an organization's obligations to behave in ways that benefit all of society, in return to being allowed to operate.

Learning Obj: 2-1 Define business ethics and describe the three levels of ethical standards.

AACSB: Ethical Understanding and Reasoning

37) Describe briefly the three levels of ethical standards.

Answer: The three levels of ethical standards are:

- The law: Laws define for society as a whole actions that are permissible and those that are not. The law is the narrowest level of ethical standards.
- Organizational policies and procedures: These serve as specific guidelines for people as they make daily decisions. Policies and procedures include a broader definition of ethical standards that go beyond what is defined by law.
- The moral stance: This is what employees take when they encounter a situation that is not governed by levels 1 and 2. It is the broadest and most fundamental definition of ethical standards.

Learning Obj: 2-1 Define business ethics and describe the three levels of ethical standards.

AACSB: Ethical Understanding and Reasoning

38) What is the difference between immoral and amoral management?

Answer: The driving force behind immoral management is greed. Immoral managers are motivated by selfish reasons such as their own gains or those of the company. Immoral managers do what they can to circumvent law or moral standards.

In contrast, amoral managers do not purposely violate law or ethical standards. Instead, amoral managers neglect to consider the impact their decisions have on others; they use free-rein decision making without reference to ethical standards.

Learning Obj: 2-1 Define business ethics and describe the three levels of ethical standards.

AACSB: Ethical Understanding and Reasoning

39) What are the steps in establishing an ethical framework?

Answer: The five steps in establishing an ethical framework are:

- Identify the personal moral and ethical principles that shape all business decisions.
- Recognize the ethical dimensions involved in the dilemma or decision.
- Identify the key stakeholders involved and determine how the decision will affect them.
- Generate alternative choices and distinguish between ethical and unethical responses.
- Choose the "best" ethical response and implement it.

Mini-Case 2-1: Doing "good" but not doing the "right" thing

Ed and Marci Buchanan are spouses and partners in a business called "Flags Unlimited." They made and sold a variety of national flags in various shapes. About 40 percent of their total revenues came from a single chain retailer, MegaMart USA that owned 798 stores throughout the United States. When Ed and Daisy started their company, their son's classmate's father was a senior buyer at MegaMart USA. The buyer, Arturo Higuain, encouraged Ed and Daisy to submit a bid to MegaMart USA and he helped the couple establish the relationship that led to subsequent recurring sales at the retailer. Higuain's wife, Lupe, was the head of the school's PTA and in charge for fund raising. Without Arturo's asking, the Buchanans started contributing significant sums of money to the PTA. Arturo never discouraged them from contributing. In a cost cutting move, Arturo was laid off from MegaMart USA and in his place, Cindy Carmichael became the buyer who interacted with the Buchanans. Cindy hinted to the Buchanans that there were other vendors willing to supply flags at a lower price than the Buchanans but that if they would contribute to the rebuilding of her (Cindy's) community's softball park, they would continue to sell their product at MegaMart USA.

40) Did the Buchanans act ethically in contributing to the school's PTA?

Answer: As this mini case indicates, there are many instances where it is hard to say clearly whether a particular situation involved an ethical violation. On the one hand, the Buchanans contributed to the PTA that was headed by the wife of MegaMart's buyer. But Arturo did not seek it and make it a quid pro quo situation – "If you do this, I will do this in return." One could argue that by not discouraging it, Arturo made it clear implicitly that this has helped the Buchanans do business with MegaMart USA. The key question is, does this pass the tests of ethical behavior (i.e., the golden rule test, or the television test, or the family test)?

Diff: 2

Learning Obj: 2-1 Define business ethics and describe the three levels of ethical standards.

AACSB: Ethical Understanding and Reasoning

41) If the Buchanans agree to pay for the community park in exchange for business from Cindy, would they have acted ethically?

Answer: Cindy has hinted that she expected reciprocity. In exchange for donation to build the park, she was willing to continue to do business with Ed and Daisy even when there were cheaper alternatives for MegaMart USA. This appears to be a clearer case of ethical violation (from both sides) than the PTA donation because here there is a connection.

Diff: 2

Learning Obj: 2-1 Define business ethics and describe the three levels of ethical standards.

AACSB: Ethical Understanding and Reasoning

42) Contributing to a PTA and donating to build a community park are civic actions. Could they not be considered good actions because they indicate social responsibility?

Answer: Because business is allowed to operate in society, it has an obligation to behave in ways that benefit all of society. Clearly, a business contributing to the PTA or to build a community softball park is an example of meeting social responsibility needs. What the Buchanans are doing is creditable if their actions are not connected to their business relationship with MegaMart USA. While their actions may be socially responsible, what Ed and Daisy Buchanan are doing may not be ethical.

- Kant's categorical imperative states that one should act in such a way that the action taken under the circumstances could be a universal law or rule of behavior.
- According to the professional ethic test, one should take only those actions that a disinterested panel of professional colleagues would view as proper.
- The golden rule test says treat other people as you would like them to treat you.
- The television test asks the question: Would you and your colleagues feel comfortable explaining your actions to a national television audience?
- The family test asks the question: Would you be comfortable explaining to your children, your spouse, and your parents why you took this action?
