

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Table of Contents

Brief Chapter Outline	2
Chapter Outline and Lecture notes	3
Key Terms	10
Suggested Text Responses	14
Class Activities and Sample Assignments.....	14
Discussion Questions for Online/Hybrid classes	15
Lecture Links	18
Lecture Link 2-1: Incubators and the Concept of Legitimacy	18
Lecture Links 2-2: Social Networking in Practice	20
Lecture Link 2-3: Do Not Compete Agreements and other Confidentiality Issues	22
Bonus Internet Exercises	24
Bonus Internet Exercise 2-1: Business Risk	24
Bonus Internet Exercise 2-2: Organizational Slack: Not for New Businesses	26
Bonus Internet Exercise 2-3: Personality and the Entrepreneur	27
Critical Thinking Exercises	29
Critical Thinking Exercise 2-1: The Elements of Entrepreneurial Orientation	29
Critical Thinking Exercise 2-2: The Two Categories of Triggers	31
Critical Thinking Exercise 2-3: Business Assessment	33
Bonus Cases	35
Bonus Case 2-1: The Current State of the Entrepreneur	35
Bonus Case 2-2: Lifesaver Realtor and Entrepreneurial Leadership	37
Bonus Case 2-3: Paint a Pretty Picture: One Individual's Approach to Entrepreneurship	40
Endnotes.....	42

IM 2-1

©2016 McGraw-Hill Education. This is proprietary material solely for authorized instructor use. Not authorized for sale or distribution in any manner. This document may not be copied, scanned, duplicated, forwarded, distributed, or posted on a website, in whole or part.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Brief Chapter Outline

- I. Learning Objectives (text page 19).
 - Explain how entrepreneurial founders impact the business world as a whole
 - Discuss the importance of an entrepreneurial orientation
 - List the triggers that encourage new business formations
 - Compare and contrast various types of new business supports
 - Explain how you can evaluate those things that you enjoy the most and discover how they may lead to business opportunities
- II. Founders are the Reason Why Entrepreneurial Business Works So Well (text pages 23 through 24)
 - Learning Objective 2-1: Explain how entrepreneurial business founders impact the business world as a whole
- III. Evaluating Your Entrepreneurial Orientation (text pages 23 through 27)
 - Learning Objective 2-2: Discuss the importance of an entrepreneurial orientation
- IV. Triggers for Starting a Business (text pages 27 through 28)
 - Learning Objective 2-3: List the triggers that encourage new business formations
- V. Supports (text pages 29 through 33)
 - Learning Objective 2-4: Compare and contrast various types of new business supports
- VI. Form a Business Doing What You Like (text pages 33 through 34)
 - Learning Objective 2-5: Explain how you can evaluate those things that you enjoy the most and discover how they may lead to business opportunities
- VII. Summary (text page 34)

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Chapter Outline and Lecture notes

1. Learning Objectives (text page 19).

- Explain how entrepreneurial business founders impact the business world as a whole
- Discuss the importance of an entrepreneurial orientation
- List the triggers that encourage new business formations
- Compare and contrast various types of new business supports
- Explain how you can evaluate those things that you enjoy the most and discover how they may lead to business opportunities

2. Founders Are the Reason Why Entrepreneurial Business Works So Well

- Learning Objective 2-1: Explain how entrepreneurial business founders impact the business world as a whole

a. New businesses have advantages that larger businesses do not have

i. New businesses

1. Increased flexibility compared to a larger businesses because the entrepreneur can respond quicker to changes, opportunities, and threats in a business environment
2. It is typical for new business founders to capture niche markets
3. The most important and notable advantage for a new business is the founder of the new business is both a manager and an owner
4. Entrepreneurs in new businesses are dedicated to their work

ii. Large businesses

1. Multiple committees in large businesses prevent them from a quick response time to changes, opportunities, and threats in a business environment
2. Large firms do not have a competitive advantage in niche markets because they can't afford to compete with smaller firms
3. A major disadvantage in large businesses is that the managers do not have ownership in the business. As a result, they do not have any substantial stock ownership in the firm

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

- b. Agency theory is a management theory that argues that individuals act to maximize their own benefit
 - i. In large organizations it is typical for the manager to perform for their personal benefit and not the greater good of the firm
 - ii. In small organizations it is typical for the entrepreneur to perform for the greater good of the firm

3. Evaluating Your Entrepreneurial Orientation (text pages 23 through 27)

➤ Learning Objective 2-2: Discuss the importance of an entrepreneurial orientation

- a. Entrepreneurs need to consider the three elements of entrepreneurial orientation before they open a new business (text page 23)
 - i. Risk tolerance
 - 1. Risk tolerance is the amount of risk an entrepreneur is willing to assume when they start a new business
 - 2. Break-even point
 - a. The point when a new business has reached a level where revenue coming into the firm is sufficient to cover expenses.
 - ii. Prior experience
 - 1. Bounded rationality is rational decision making that is constrained by the background and history of the decision maker
 - a. Bounded rationality promotes future leaders because they are not limited by past experiences
 - iii. Personality orientation of the individual
 - 1. Personality orientation occurs when an individual examines their individual personality
 - 2. The extroverted and outgoing entrepreneur performs better in a business environment that has extensive interpersonal interactions
 - 3. The introverted entrepreneur performs better in a business environment that has limited interpersonal interactions

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

4. Personality tests evaluate the factors in the environment that sparked an interest that led the entrepreneur to start a new business
5. Three popular tests include the Myers-Briggs test, the Enneagram, and the Big Five test
 - a. The Myers-Briggs test focuses on the following four variables
 - i. Extroversion-introversion focuses on an outward or internal variable
 - ii. Sensing-intuiting focuses on how individuals gather data
 - iii. Thinking-feeling focuses on how people make decisions
 - iv. Judgment-perception focuses on order versus flexibility
 - b. The Enneagram test evaluates the following nine different personality types
 - i. Reformer refers to the idealist/perfectionist personality
 - ii. Helper refers to the caring/good interpersonal skills
 - iii. Achiever refers to the competent/driven individual
 - iv. Individualist refers to the sensitive/dramatic personality type
 - v. Investigator refers to the cerebral/focused individual
 - vi. Loyalist refers to the committed/pessimistic individual
 - vii. Enthusiast refers to the fun-loving/impatient individual
 - viii. Peacemaker refers to the easygoing/passive aggressive individual
 - ix. Challenger refers to the action oriented, cynical individual.
 - c. The Big Five test emerged as a result of data analysis and it explores the following personality traits
 - i. Open-mindedness

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

- ii. Conscientiousness
 - iii. Agreeableness
 - iv. Emotional stability
 - v. Extroversion
 - 6. Ask students to evaluate their personality using one of these personality tests
4. Triggers for Starting a Business (text pages 27 though 28)
- Learning Objective 2-3: List the triggers that encourage new business formations
- a. Triggers are a result of positive or negative stimuli that encourage an individual or group to initiate a new business
 - i. Loss of employment
 - ii. Inspired to establish business by other individuals or groups
 - iii. Tolerable levels of risk and return
 - iv. Financial security
 - v. Innovative ideas that inspire improvement
 - vi. Inspired by books, entrepreneurs, or seminars
 - vii. Life changes associated with crisis
 - viii. Observations of incubator or business development in community
 - ix. Employed by a firm with no growth potential
 - 1. Did not graduate from an ivy league college
 - 2. Women entrepreneurs initiate new businesses
 - 3. The glass ceiling : Women are unable to climb the corporate ladder in a male-dominated industry or corporation
 - 4. Women entrepreneurs represent the fastest growing segment of entrepreneurs
 - 5. Incorrect job fit
 - b. Triggers are categorized by personal motivations and circumstance motivations
 - i. Personal motivations are the strongest motivations
 - 1. Motivated to change career
 - 2. Proactive
 - 3. Goal driven
 - 4. Circumstance motivations result in defense positioning
 - a. Opportunities for potential entrepreneurs present themselves as a result of the environment

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

- b. Motivated by start-up opportunities from competing factors
- c. Examples of circumstance motivations
- d. Laid-off or displaced worker
- e. Demoted from a prestigious position
- f. Employed at a reduced or discounted pay
- g. More flexibility in their lives and families

5. Supports (text pages 29 through 33)

➤ Learning objective 2-4: Compare and contrast various types of new business supports

- a. Entrepreneurs have many support and resources available to assist them with their small business needs
- b. Supports are unique to the individual entrepreneur
- c. Supports are unique to the entrepreneur's geographical location
- d. Examples of supports include family, networks, community, and financial support
 - i. Family
 - 1. Ask students to create a list of close family members and compose a list of the capabilities those individuals possess that might provide support to the new business (text page 29)
 - 2. New business owners and future entrepreneurs utilize all resources from their family
 - 3. New businesses are often referred to as a family business
 - a. The key staff and decision makers in the business consist of family members
 - b. Compared to a non-family-owned business the long-term management of a family business is unique
 - c. There are flexible payroll options in a family business
 - d. The level of commitment in a family-owned business far exceeds that of a non-family-owned small business
 - e. It is possible for a family business to have negative outcomes

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

- i. It is difficult to fire or reprimand a family member
- ii. A family member could make negative verbal comments that a regular employee would not make
- iii. Nepotism can cause negative outcomes to the other employees
- iv. Ask students to discuss the pros and cons related to a family-operated business

4. Networks

- a. Networks provide key support resources to entrepreneurs
- b. Former employees are a good network resource
- c. Individuals from fraternal organizations are potential network resources
- d. School organizations provide possible network resources
- e. Other organizations that provide potential network resources are churches or synagogues
- f. Good network resources can prevent corruption and fraud
- g. Good network resources establish legitimacy
- h. Blogs and chat rooms from other similar businesses can be a source of advice.
- i. Crowd sourcing sites such as Kickstarter.com and Crowdfunder.com reach out to a wide community online to get funding and advice.

5. Community

- a. The community provides supports that can help prevent or reduce the level or risk for a new business
- b. An incubator is a facility that houses the new business and provides essential services. New businesses are expected to develop and leave the facility often within 18 months of founding.
 - i. Examples include
 - 1. Office machines
 - 2. Office Furniture
 - 3. Telephones

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

4. Fax machines
 5. Copy machines
 6. Other maintenance needs for new business
 - c. The business incubator provides essential services to assist the new business with their start-up and continued business needs
 - i. Receptionist at a centralized location helps to build credibility for the new business
 - ii. Offers space to tenant firms at subsidized rates
 - iii. Small Business Assistance Centers are centers that are funded by the Small Business Administration (SBA) that advise individuals with their new business at no cost.
 1. Assist the firm with funding resources
 2. Counseling services provided by retired executives
 6. Financial support
 - a. Entrepreneurs must understand the cost/benefit of the new business
 - b. Entrepreneurs must utilize financial resources
 - c. Entrepreneurs must be able to have a broad understanding of what financial resources are available and a realistic idea of what will be needed to expend.
6. Form a Business Doing What You Like (text pages 33 through 34)
- Learning Objective 2-5: Explain how you can evaluate those things that you enjoy the most and discover how they may lead to business opportunities
- a. The successful entrepreneurs enjoy their work
 - b. The time/reward relationship in a new business involves more than a financial reward
7. For Review (text pages 34-35)

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Key Terms

Agency Theory: A managerial theory that believes individuals act to maximize their own benefit. Thus, in settings where there is a split between ownership and control (as in most publicly traded corporations) the agents (managers) must be monitored or they will act to maximize their own benefit, not necessarily that of those who own the firm (the shareholders). (LO 2-1)

Bounded Rationality: Rational decision making that is constrained by the background and history of the person making the decision. (LO 2-2)

Break-even Point: The time when a new business has reached a level where revenue coming into the firm is sufficient to cover expenses. (LO 2-2)

Incubator: A facility that houses new businesses and provides many critical services for them. New businesses are expected to develop and typically leave the facility often within 18 months of founding. (LO 2-4)

Organizational Slack: Excess resources in an organization that allow for redundancy and the quick deployment of personnel in crisis. (LO 2-1)

Small Business Assistance Centers: Centers funded by the Small Business Administration that provide free advice to individuals wishing to start new businesses. (LO 2-4)

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Suggested Text Responses

Opening Vignette – Philly Pretzel and Dan Dizio

Student responses will vary.

Exercise 1 – Page 22

Student responses will vary.

Exercise 2 – Page 23

Student responses will vary.

Exercise 3 – Page 24

Student responses will vary.

Ethical Challenge – Page 27

Student responses will vary.

Exercise 4 – Page 33

Student responses will vary.

Exercise 5 – Page 34

Student responses will vary.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Review Questions – Page 34

1. How does the lack of “slack” resources impact new ventures?

The new firm has limited flexibility in responding to issues such as the need to hire replacements if the company loses key individuals.

2. Why is founder involvement in a new venture so critical to its success?

Because the founder has substantial ownership in the company, the founder always acts to maximize the value of the business. If the business makes money, the owner makes money.

3. Is there a minimum level of risk tolerance required to start a business? Explain.

Entrepreneurs should never do anything that does not allow them to sleep at night.

4. How does bounded rationality affect the way an entrepreneur determines what type of business to start?

The individual brings his or her own view of the world to the business. This view places boundaries on what decision maker will consider as she or he makes decisions. These boundaries are set by experiences, history, culture, and family values.

5. How do you think personality differences matter in the starting of a business?

Outgoing and extroverted personalities may wish to focus on a business with extensive interpersonal interactions. More introverted personalities may wish to focus on businesses in which interpersonal interactions are more limited such as web based companies.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

6. List some triggers that push people into starting a business.

Being laid off; being approached with a business idea; reaching a tolerable risk level; receiving evidence that an idea is doable; attending a seminar reading a book; talking to other entrepreneurs; unable to climb the corporate ladder.

7. Have you experience any of these triggers? Did it cause you to consider starting your own business?

Student responses will vary.

8. Which supports do you believe you might rely on the most if you started your own business?

Supports could include family, networks and community.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Class Activities and Sample Assignments

1. Divide the class into groups of two or three students. Ask students to choose a business and list their individual risk tolerances. As a group, discuss the cumulative risks associated with a potential new business if the students in each group were partners in that new business. Next, ask the students to analyze the results and decide if they should initiate the new business. Why or why not? (LO 2-2)
2. Ask students to define organizational slack. Discuss whether or not organizational slack is abundant in an entrepreneurial business or a large business. Why? (LO 2-1)
3. Divide the class into groups of two or three students. Ask each group to define bounded rationality and list their individual assessment of bounded rationality. Discuss how bounded rationality can enhance leadership because individuals are not limited by some past experiences. (LO 2-2)
4. In groups, ask students to discuss the key differences in the outcomes of the Myers-Briggs test, the Enneagram, and the Big Five test. Which test would they prefer in their new business? Why? (LO 2-2)
5. Ask the students to discuss their individual likes and dislikes related to opportunities for a new business. Next, ask students if they would consider opening a new business that offered a product that they did not like for the sole purpose that it generated a tremendous amount of profit. Discuss whether or not that new business would be successful over a long period of time. (LO 2-5)
6. Ask students to consider the various supports and resources that are available to them as potential entrepreneurs and list the ones that they think are more important and explain why. Ask students to support their various responses with specific examples. (LO 2-4)
7. Ask students to consider the triggers that would enhance their motivation and increase their efforts to focus on a new business venture. List the triggers on a flip chart and discuss why it is motivational. (LO 2-3)

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Discussion Questions for Online/Hybrid classes

1. Discuss the similarities and differences between entrepreneurial businesses and large businesses. (LO 2-1)
2. Explain the advantages and disadvantages of new business entrepreneurship? (LO 2-1)
3. Compare and contrast the behavior of entrepreneurs versus the behavior of large corporate executives. Why are entrepreneurs more dedicated to their businesses? (LO 2-1)
4. Why is it important for potential entrepreneurs to have a personality that compliments their interest in a potential new business opportunity? Why should entrepreneurs enjoy their work? (LO 2-2 and LO 2-5)
5. What is risk tolerance? Why should potential entrepreneurs analyze their risk tolerance? (LO 2-2)
6. Consider the reasons why potential entrepreneurs decide to pursue entrepreneurship. Compare and contrast personal motivations with circumstance motivations. Discuss what motivates you to consider entrepreneurship. (LO 2-3)
7. Why are minority women-owned firms so popular? In your opinion, does the glass-ceiling exist? Do you believe that it is a barrier that prevents women from promotions to executive-level positions in corporate America? (LO 2-3)
8. If you were a potential entrepreneur, what supports and resources would you use to enhance your new business? Explain why they are important to the success of your new business. (LO 2-4)
9. Suppose you are a new entrepreneur and you hired several family members to fill key positions vacant at your new business. Discuss the ethical issues that might arise between the employees that are relatives and the other employees that work at your new business? (LO 2-4)
10. What is a business incubator? How do they assist entrepreneurs with new business startups? (LO 2-4)

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Discussion Questions for Online/Hybrid classes- Responses

- 1. Discuss the similarities and differences between entrepreneurial businesses and large businesses. (LO 2-1) In a large business, no one person is critical to the business but in an entrepreneurial business the success of the business depends on the founder. Large businesses also have a wide dispersion of knowledge among the employees but an entrepreneurial business relies on the founder with possibly a few employees. Large businesses usually have more financial resources than small businesses.
- 2. Explain the advantages and disadvantages of new business entrepreneurship? (LO 2-1) Entrepreneurial businesses have greater flexibility, can respond quickly to changes and can fill niches that large businesses can't afford to fill. Large firms have the advantage of economies of scale and a depth of knowledge among its employees.
- 3. Compare and contrast the behavior of entrepreneurs versus the behavior of large corporate executives. Why are entrepreneurs more dedicated to their businesses? (LO 2-1) Managers in large businesses tend to act for his or her own benefit whereas the founder acts to maximize the value of the business.
- 4. Why is it important for potential entrepreneurs to have a personality that compliments their interest in a potential new business opportunity? Why should entrepreneurs enjoy their work? (LO 2-2 and LO 2-5) The potential entrepreneur will be involved with the business 24/7 so a person whose personality doesn't fit or who isn't happy will not succeed.
- 5. What is risk tolerance? Why should potential entrepreneurs analyze their risk tolerance? (LO 2-2) Potential entrepreneurs need to determine their personal willingness to accept risk and let that information help them with their decision.
- 6. Consider the reasons why potential entrepreneurs decide to pursue entrepreneurship. Compare and contrast personal motivations with circumstance motivations. Discuss what motivates you to consider entrepreneurship. (LO 2-3) Personal motivations come from the individuals themselves and drive people to make career and life-altering moves. Entrepreneurs driven by personal motivation will be more proactive and drive relentlessly toward their goals.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

- 7. Why are minority women-owned firms so popular? In your opinion, does the glass-ceiling exist? Do you believe that it is a barrier that prevents women from promotions to executive-level positions in corporate America? (LO 2-3) Many women find their career opportunities blocked by the glass ceiling and become entrepreneurs.
- 8. If you were a potential entrepreneur, what supports and resources would you use to enhance your new business? Explain why they are important to the success of your new business. (LO 2-4) Student responses will vary but could include family, networks, and community.
- 9. Suppose you are a new entrepreneur and you hired several family members to fill key positions vacant at your new business. Discuss the ethical issues that might arise between the employees that are relatives and the other employees that work at your new business. (LO 2-4) Responses will vary but could include conflicts among family members, problems with firing a family member, and issues with other employees who are not family members.
- 10. What is a business incubator? How do they assist entrepreneurs with new business startups? (LO 2-4) A business incubator is a facility that house new businesses and provides many critical services for the new ventures. Many new businesses cannot afford a receptionist, space, or other equipment.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Lecture Links

Lecture Link 2-1: Incubators and the Concept of Legitimacy
(LO 2-4)

New business owners must consider many options when they plan to implement the new business. Acknowledge that you generated your innovative business idea, now it is time to analyze what type of support you require to get the operation up and running. Recall from the text that an incubator is a facility that houses the new business and they provide the essential service for your new start up and the need that are required to continue your business.

Perhaps you do not have the funding that is required to purchase the essential tools and equipment outright to start the business. You could start it up in the basement, the garage, or your home office. However, consider how a potential investor or partner might view that operation. A new business owner wants to assure their business projects a level of legitimacy not only for investors and potential partners, but for the purpose of projecting a legitimate and trusted business.

Assume that you have already established your business and in your analysis you realize that you require a business incubator for the business. Conduct research on the internet to find a business incubator firm in your area and complete the questions listed below.

Discussion Questions:

1. Summarize the results of your research for a business incubator in your area. What was the outcome of your research? Be specific.
2. What type of products and services did the companies offer? Were they reasonably priced?
3. Which business incubator would you choose for your new business needs? Provide specific reasons and explain why.
4. Discuss the products and services that you will utilize from the service and why you believe those are the products or services that you need. Be specific.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Lecture Link 2-1: Incubators and the Concept of Legitimacy (LO 2-4)-Notes

Student responses will vary.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Lecture Links 2-2: Social Networking in Practice (LO 2-4)

Many new business owners contemplate about the techniques they will use to assure they network to receive the support they require to promote and develop their new business initiatives. Networking is important for a variety of reasons. In the text, you learned that networks provide key support resources to entrepreneurs. In addition, individuals from various sources in the community offer support that assist new business owners to pursue their new business goals.

The internet provides a variety of social networking resources that business owners can join to achieve their network goals. Analyze the various resources that are available to entrepreneurs. Consider the type of networks that you will utilize to promote your business. Conduct research and discuss the following questions:

1. List ten social network resources for entrepreneurs to consider for their new business.
2. Compare and contrast the features and benefits of these resources. Discuss the advantages of each resource. Be specific.
3. Discuss which social networking web sites that you would consider to join. Why?

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Lecture Links 2-2: Social Networking in Practice (LO 2-4)-Notes

- 1. List ten social network resources for entrepreneurs to consider for their new business. Social networking sites are constantly changing so the students answers may vary. Some examples may include LinkedIn, Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, Craig's List, Google+.
- 2. Compare and contrast the features and benefits of these resources. Discuss the advantages of each resource. Be specific. Student's response will vary.
- 3. Discuss which social networking web sites that you would consider to join. Why? Student responses will vary.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Lecture Link 2-3: Do Not Compete Agreements and other Confidentiality Issues (LO 2-3)

Entrepreneurs consider many details when they implement their new business ideas, development, planning, and of course goals. In the ethical challenge case presented by the authors, you observed an ethical decision that an employee had to make about taking a client list prior to her departure from the company.

Generally, many businesses today ask employees to sign confidentiality agreements, do not compete, and other non disclosure documents during their tenure. Typically, these documents forbid employees from removing client lists, competing with clients after they leave the company for a specified period of time, and other specific stipulations against these actions. In addition, a company could choose to have these documents drawn up by an attorney or another professional. The purpose is to prevent individuals from taking business away from the company.

Conduct research on the internet to search for do not compete agreements, non disclosure agreements, and confidentiality agreements.

Discussion Questions:

1. Summarize the outcome of your research. What did you discover about non-compete agreements and confidentiality agreements? What legal issues are involved?
2. Discuss what you might do as a new business owner to prevent individuals from removing client lists or other confidential data. What type of documents will you consider enforcing as an entrepreneur?
3. Discuss the outcome of not implementing these types of agreements for your new business.
4. Discuss the actions that you would take as a new business owner if an employee endorsed a confidentiality agreement and took a client list regardless of the agreement. What are your options? Be specific.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Lecture Link 2-3: Do Not Compete Agreements and other Confidentiality Issues
(LO 2-3)-Notes

Discussion Questions:

- 1. Summarize the outcome of your research. What did you discover about non-compete agreements and confidentiality agreements? What legal issues are involved? A non-compete agreement is an agreement where one party agrees not to start a similar business within a certain area. There are usually term limits to the agreement. A confidentiality agreement is an agreement where an employee or contractor agrees not to disclose any information about the business. The language needs to be specific. However, in some cases, a court may decide that such an agreement may impede the livelihood of a person and such an agreement may not uphold in court.
- 2. Discuss what you might do as a new business owner to prevent individuals from removing client lists or other confidential data. What type of documents will you consider enforcing as an entrepreneur? Both a non-compete agreement and confidentiality agreement may help prevent an individual from removing confidential data. A new business owner needs to be careful with confidential information and who he trusts with it.
- 3. Discuss the outcome of not implementing these types of agreements for your new business. Not having such an agreement may allow a former employee to open a similar competing business nearby.
- 4. Discuss the actions that you would take as a new business owner if an employee endorsed a confidentiality agreement and took a client list regardless of the agreement. What are your options? Be specific. This situation is why a new business owner needs to have a working relationship with a good attorney who can guide him. The new business owner can sue but this usually involves a long, expensive process.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Internet Exercises

Bonus Internet Exercise 2-1: Business Risk

(LO 2-4)

In this chapter we discussed that risk tolerance is one of the three elements of entrepreneurial orientation. It was defined as the amount of risk a new business is willing to assume when they implement their new business.

Assume that you already established your new business. Next, perform a search on the internet to discover various types of business risks. In the search engine, type in “business risk” and review some articles or web sites that discuss the various types of business risk and answer the following questions.

1. Describe your business. What types of business risk did you discover in your research? List at least five types of business risk and document the web site that you used.
2. Discuss each risk and summarize how that risk might adversely affect your new business.
3. What could you do to mitigate that risk? Be specific.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Internet Exercise 2-1: Business Risk Notes (LO 2-5)

The answers from the students will vary. According to a recent article at Forbes.com¹ the following risks were discussed:

1. Credit
2. Legal
3. Regulatory
4. Operational
5. Hiccups
6. Concentration risk
7. You

Students are encouraged to discuss their new business and discuss what they would do to limit business risk and assure their new business is successful.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Internet Exercise 2-2: Organizational Slack: Not for New Businesses (LO 2-4)

Consider some of the differences between large and entrepreneurial businesses. For example, large organizations have different characteristics than small entrepreneurial firms. For example, organizational slack is defined as the excess resources in an organization but not in an entrepreneurial business (text page 20). Consider a popular large organization and a popular entrepreneurial business.

Conduct research on the internet and discover a large organization that could have excess resources, compare it to the resources of an entrepreneurial business, and discuss the questions below.

1. Discuss the two businesses that you researched. List their name, their industry, and the URL address where you found your data.
2. What major differences in resources did you observe? Be specific.
3. Summarize the reasons why the large firm has excess resources and the entrepreneurial business did not.
4. Compare and contrast the two businesses. Discuss other differences that you observed in your research.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Internet Exercise 2–3: Personality and the Entrepreneur (LO 2-3)

The authors in the text emphasized that individuals that are outgoing are considered to be extroverted. Those individuals that have limited interpersonal interactions are said to be introverted. As a result, potential entrepreneurs that are extroverted will thrive in a business that has extensive interpersonal interactions. To contrast, potential entrepreneurs that are introverted will thrive in a business that has limited interpersonal interactions.

Conduct research on the internet to discover a business owner that is extroverted. Next, conduct research to discover a business owner that is introverted.

Discussion Questions:

1. What two businesses did you research? Who are the owners?
2. Discuss the type of business or industry that each business owner performs work.
3. Does the extroverted business owner work in an industry that has extensive interactions with people? Does the extroverted business owner work in an industry that has limited interactions with people? Discuss the outcome of your research.
4. Do you believe that each individual personality type has an impact on the type of business own? Explain your belief.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Internet Exercise 2–3: Personality and the Entrepreneur (LO 2-3)-Notes

Student responses will vary depending on the business selected. Some choices may include Bill Gates, Mark Zuckenburg, Steve Jobs, Michael Dell.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Critical Thinking Exercises

Critical Thinking Exercise 2-1: The Elements of Entrepreneurial Orientation (LO 2-2)

As we learned in the text, the three elements of entrepreneurial orientation include risk tolerance, prior experience, and personality orientation of the individual. Entrepreneurs must analyze these elements and they make sound business decisions based on the outcome of their assessments.

Summarize your individual personal traits for each of the three elements. Be specific and include an assessment of your break-even point, your bounded rationality, and include the personality test that you focused on to analyze your individual personality.

1. Risk tolerance:
2. Prior experience:
3. Personality orientation:
4. Break-even point analysis:
5. Bounded rationality:
6. Personality test choice:

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Critical Thinking Exercise 2-1 Notes

1. Risk Tolerance: Risk tolerance is the amount of risk an entrepreneur is willing to assume when the initiate a new business venture. Students should include a brief analysis that estimates their break-even point. Break-even point was defined in the text as the point when the revenue coming into the firm is sufficient to cover expenses.

NOTE: Answers will vary based on the student's personal risk tolerance.

2. Prior Experience: Students define and discuss bounded rationality as the rational decision making that is constrained by the background and history of the decision maker. Bounded rationality promotes future leaders because they are not limited by past experiences.

NOTE: Answers will vary based on the student's prior business experience.

3. Personal Orientation of the Individual: Occurs when an individual examines their individual personality. Students may discuss the introverted and extroverted entrepreneur and the three popular personality tests described in the text. The three personality tests are the Myers-Briggs test, the Enneagram, and the Big Five test.

NOTE: Answers will vary based on the student's prior business experience.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Critical Thinking Exercise 2-2: The Two Categories of Triggers (LO 2-3)

As we learned in this chapter, triggers can encourage the formation of new business ventures. They are a result of positive and negative stimuli that encourage an individual or group to initiate a new business.

Discussion Questions:

1. Provide specific examples of triggers that encourage the formation of new business ventures.
2. List the two categories of triggers and provide specific examples of each.
3. Which trigger is considered the strongest motivator? Why? Be specific.
4. Discuss which motivator results in defense positioning and explain why.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Critical Thinking Exercise 2-2: The Two Categories of Triggers Notes (LO 2-3)

1. Provide specific examples of triggers that encourage the formation of new small business ventures. Examples of triggers include loss of employment; inspired to establish business by other individuals; tolerable levels of risk and return; financial security; innovative ideas that inspire improvement; inspired by books, entrepreneurs, or seminars; life changes associated with a crisis; observations of incubator or business development in the community; employed by a firm with no growth potential; did not graduate from an ivy league college; a woman entrepreneur; and finally an incorrect job fit. Answers will vary.
2. List the two categories of triggers and provide specific examples of each.
The two categories of triggers are personal motivations (internal) and circumstance (external) motivations. An example of a personal motivation is a career change. Two traits related to personal motivation include individuals that are proactive; and individuals that are goal driven. Specific examples of the circumstance motivation are a displaced worker, an individual that was demoted from a prestigious position, or an individual that is employed at a reduced or discounted rate of pay.
3. Which trigger is considered the strongest motivator? Personal motivations are considered to be the strongest motivator. The personal motivations drive individuals to pursue their goals. As a result, it is the strongest force that motivates individuals to pursue the new small business goals and dreams.
4. Discuss which motivator results in defense positioning and explain why.
Circumstance motivations result in defense positioning because opportunities present themselves as a result of the economy; and they are motivated by start-up opportunities from competing factors.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Critical Thinking Exercise 2-3: Business Assessment (LO 2-5)

As you learned in the text, entrepreneurs are expected to experience increased success if they enjoy their business. Consider your likes and dislikes as they relate to business and entrepreneurship.

Business Assessment
Business Type	Likes	Dislikes

Discussion Questions:

1. Summarize the businesses that you listed in the assessment. Why did you choose these businesses? Be specific.
2. Discuss the business type that you like. What do you like about these businesses? Be specific.
3. Discuss the business type that you dislike. What do you dislike about these businesses? Be specific.
4. Evaluate the businesses that you like. How likely are you to establish this type of business?

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Critical Thinking Exercise 2-3: Business Risk Notes

The answers will vary. The purpose of this exercise is for students to examine what they like or dislike about a specific business type. Students will evaluate a potential business and discuss whether or not they would open the business.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Cases

Bonus Case 2-1: The Current State of the Entrepreneur

(LO 2-1, 2-2, 2-3, 2-4, 2-5, 2-6)

Many individuals implement new businesses for a variety of reasons. There are many details to consider on the quest to entrepreneurship. One of most critical issues that an entrepreneur must consider is where they will obtain financing for their new business.

Existing Financial Resources (assets)	Existing Financial Obligations (debt)	New Business Needs	Potential Resources

The purpose of this analysis is to review your existing financial resources (assets), evaluate your existing financial obligations (debts), list what you believe you might need to start the new business, and list all of your supports that might help you achieve your entrepreneurial goals.

For the purpose of this exercise, your assets are considered as your cash, savings accounts, certificates of deposit, IRA's, 401K's, stocks, bonds, and the available equity in your home.

Your debt is considered all of your obligations and monthly bills. In the existing financial obligation section, list your monthly expenses, rent or mortgage, your monthly utility bills, installment loans, revolving debt (monthly credit card payments), child support, alimony, and all other outstanding debt.

In the New Business need section, list all of the items that you believe you need for your new business and estimate the accumulated cost.

In the Resource section, list all of the potential resources that you can think of that might help you fund your new business.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Discussion Questions:

1. Add the assets column and list the results.
2. Add the total amount of debt that you pay each month and list the results.
3. List all the material items you believe are required to initiate your new business.
4. Next, list all the support resource that you can utilize for your new business need.
5. Summarize the results of your analysis. Do your assets exceed your debts? Discuss whether or not you have the funds required to initiate your new business? If not, list your support resources and discuss how they will assist you with your new business goals.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Case 2-2: Lifesaver Realtor and Entrepreneurial Leadership (LO 2-3)

Laurie Wagner

Entrepreneurs assess and evaluate the characteristics of their personality to gain specific information related to their likes and dislikes about potential business opportunities. Frequently, the results of certain analysis indicate the industry or the type of business that an individual can excel in as an entrepreneur.

Another significant characteristic for a potential entrepreneur to evaluate is their leadership skills. You want to open a new business, however, have you ever been a leader? What are the characteristics of a leader? Effective leadership skills enhance the new business owner's values; and they enhance their role as a leader. Entrepreneurs develop leadership skills to assure they are positive role models in the communities they serve.

One example of an entrepreneur that has effective leadership skills is Laurie Wagner. Ms. Wagner was a real estate agent in Virginia Beach, Virginia, licensed with Rose and Womble Realty. In addition, she was considered a leader in her community. In an interview, Ms. Wagner was asked what the most important characteristics of a leader for entrepreneurs to develop, she replied "honesty first even when nobody is looking", "perseverance", "listening to others", and "leading by example".ⁱⁱ

1. Describe the leadership traits that are important for an entrepreneur to achieve success in their new business ventures. List at least five characteristics and explain why they are important to a new business owner.
2. Explain why entrepreneurs need to develop leadership skills. List at least three reasons and explain why they are important to a new business owner.
3. Summarize the leadership characteristics listed above and discuss why they are important.
4. Do you believe that all entrepreneurs are leaders? Do you believe that entrepreneurs are born as leaders or do they acquire those skills?
5. Why is it important for an entrepreneur to possess leadership skills to enhance their decision making processes?
6. Discuss how potential entrepreneurs that lack leadership skills can gain those skills to assure they become effective leaders. Explain your answer.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

7. Compare your skills to the characteristics and skills of a leader in your community. What changes, if any, do you need to implement to assure you are an effective and efficient leader?

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Case 2-2: Lifesaver Realtor and Entrepreneurial Leadership (LO 2-3)-Notes

- 1. Describe the leadership traits that are important for an entrepreneur to achieve success in their new business ventures. List at least five characteristics and explain why they are important to a new business owner. Leadership traits could include projecting authority, influencing others, motivating, having a sense of humor, humble, influential, and authoritative. The most successful new business owners will have many of these traits.
- 2. Explain why entrepreneurs need to develop leadership skills. List at least three reasons and explain why they are important to a new business owner. The owner is the leader of the organization and a person who does not develop leadership skills will not be able to lead the company to success.
- 3. Do you believe that all entrepreneurs are leaders? Do you believe that entrepreneurs are born as leaders or do they acquire those skills? Student's responses will vary. Statistics show that successful entrepreneurs developed leadership skills at a young age but they are not necessarily born with them.
- 4. Discuss how potential entrepreneurs that lack leadership skills can gain those skills to assure they become effective leaders. Explain your answer. There are many books, videos and programs available to help potential entrepreneurs gain leadership skills.
- 5. Compare your skills to the characteristics and skills of a leader in your community. What changes, if any, do you need to implement to assure you are an effective and efficient leader? Student responses will vary depending on their personal characteristics and skills.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Case 2-3: Paint a Pretty Picture: One Individual's Approach to Entrepreneurship (LO 2-4)

The quest to entrepreneurship can be a long process for some individuals. Other individuals seem to achieve success overnight. One important concept that entrepreneurs need to consider is that they must enjoy their work.

For example, Barbara Lively Mastaglio is a business woman, an artist, a mother, and a wife. (Personal Interview by Lisa Johnson, 2009). She owns a summer home on Valentia Island in Ireland; and when she is not working abroad at her cottage on the island she resides in Norfolk, Virginia. When asked what she contributes to her success as an entrepreneur she asserted "I paint pretty pictures." In addition, she blames her success on "hard work", "dedication", and "my number one goal is to have a lot of fun."

1. Explain why it is important for entrepreneurs to enjoy their work. Be specific.
2. How will you assure that you paint pretty pictures with your new business venture?
3. Discuss your new business venture and why you anticipate that you will thoroughly enjoy it.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Bonus Case 2-3: Paint a Pretty Picture: One Individual's Approach to Entrepreneurship
(LO 2-4)-Notes

1. Explain why it is important for entrepreneurs to enjoy their work. Be specific. Entrepreneurs are involved with their business 24/7 so if they do not enjoy their business, they will be unhappy and ultimately fail.
2. How will you assure that you paint pretty pictures with your new business venture? Student responses will vary but the students should be encouraged to be positive about their business. This helps the customer feel confident with dealing with the entrepreneur.
3. Discuss your new business venture and why you anticipate that you will thoroughly enjoy it. Student responses will vary.

Ch. 2: Individual Leadership and Entrepreneurial Start-Ups

Endnotes

ⁱ Sutton, C. and Nelson, B. (2009). The biggest risks to your business and how to minimize them in a bad economy. Forbes.com. <http://www.forbes.com/2009/04/15/biggest-business-risks-entrepreneurs-management-risk.html>
Retrieved on October 13, 2009.

ⁱⁱ Wagner, Laurie. (2009). Laurie Wagner, Realtor. Rose and Womble Realty 2009.
<http://www.roseandwomble.com/Agent/Laurie%20Wagner/> Retrieved on October 14, 2009.