124. Define strategic planning. Discuss the steps involved.

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-124

Page-Reference: 46

Skill: Concept

Objective: 2-1

Answer: The process of developing and maintaining a strategic fit between the organization's goals and capabilities and its changing marketing opportunities is called strategic planning. At the outset, beginning at the corporate level, each company must define its overall purpose and mission. What is our business? Who is the customer? What do our customers value? Answers to these questions are crucial in writing a clear mission statement. Mission statements need to be carefully defined in terms of customer needs. Missions should be realistic, motivating, and fit the market environment. Missions then lead to setting business and marketing objectives/goals in the planning process. This is followed by decisions regarding what portfolio of businesses and products is best for the company and how much support to give each one. Next, each business and product develops detailed marketing and other functional strategies. In this step, plans are drawn at the business unit, product, and market levels in support of company-wide plans.

125. What is business portfolio planning? Discuss how a company might use the Boston Consulting Group's product portfolio analysis method.

Armstrong, Marketing, Fifth Canadian Edition
Test Item File

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-125
Page-Reference: 49–53
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-2

Answer: A business portfolio is the collection of businesses and products that make up the company. Business portfolio planning entails two steps. First, there is an analysis of the company's current business portfolio, followed by decisions about what businesses should receive more, less, or no investment. Second, planners must shape the future portfolio by developing strategies for growth and/or downsizing. The Boston Consulting Group matrix evaluates SBUs on two important dimensions: the attractiveness of the SBU's market or industry growth rate and the strength of the SBU's position or relative market share in that market or industry. The growth-share matrix defines four types of SBUs: stars, cash cows, question marks, and dogs. Once each SBU has been defined, a company can determine what role each will play in the firm's future, using strategies of building, holding, harvesting, or divesting each SBU.

126. What are some problems with matrix approaches?

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-126
Page-Reference: 51
Skill: Concept

Answer: The BCG and other portfolio planning approaches can be difficult to execute, time consuming, and also costly to implement. Defining SBUs and the measurement of relative market share and growth can be a difficult task as well. A serious flaw with these approaches is that, while they are helpful for classifying current businesses, they offer little or no advice for future planning.

127. The BCG is a useful approach to evaluate current businesses. Describe a device that a firm could use to identify future growth opportunities.

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-127
Page-Reference: 52
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-2

Answer: The product/market expansion grid is a useful device for identifying growth opportunities in the future. There are four strategies available to companies: market penetration, market development, product development, and diversification. Market penetration entails making more sales to current customers without changing products. Market development involves identifying and developing new markets for a company's products. New markets include demographic groups and geographic regions, among others. Companies can also consider product development, offering modified or new products to current markets. Diversifying companies might consider acquiring or starting new businesses unrelated to their core competencies. However, diversifying too broadly can be detrimental in the long run.

128. What does the term "value-delivery network" mean? Explain.

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-128
Page-Reference: 55–56
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-3

Armstrong, Marketing, Fifth Canadian Edition
Test Item File

Answer: For decades, marketers have traditionally created value to satisfy customer needs and wants. Today, the manufacturer or retailer needs to look beyond its own value chain and into the value chains of suppliers and distributors to create value throughout the entire supply chain. More companies are partnering with other members of the supply chain to improve the performance of the customer value-delivery network. In fact, today competition takes place between entire value delivery networks instead of between individual competitors.

129. Define marketing strategy. Discuss the steps in formulating marketing strategy.

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-129

Page-Reference: 56–60

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-4

Answer: The marketing logic by which a company hopes to achieve profitable relationships is called its marketing strategy. Marketing strategy formulation entails four specific steps: market segmentation, market targeting, differentiation, and positioning. The process of dividing a market into distinct groups of buyers with different needs, characteristics, or behavior is called market segmentation. Market targeting involves evaluating each market segment's attractiveness and selecting one or more segments to enter. A company should target segments in which it can profitably generate the greatest customer value and sustain that value over time. Effective positioning begins with actually differentiating the company's marketing offer so that it gives consumers greater value. Positioning is defined as creating a distinct image of a product in the eyes of target consumers. A product's positioning should take advantage of a competitive advantage within the market target.

130. Explain why, according to the authors of your text, the four Ps concept of the marketing mix takes a seller's view of the market, not the buyer's view. How should marketers consider the buyer's view?

Difficulty: 3

QuestionID: 02-130

Page-Reference: 61–62

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-4

Answer: In today's day and age of customer relationship marketing, the four Ps can be described as the four Cs from the customer's point of view. In lieu of product, there is customer solution; that is, customers buy solutions to their problems or look for value in products. Customers are more interested in the total costs of obtaining, using, and disposing of a product. That is, customer cost replaces price in customer relationships. The place element of the marketing mix focuses on convenience. Convenience in availability is the central focus of customers. Finally, customers and marketers want two-way communication. Marketers should use the four Cs as a base for the four Ps of their marketing mix.

131. Define marketing planning. Briefly outline the major steps in a marketing plan.

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-131

Page-Reference: 63

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-5

Answer: Marketing planning involves deciding on marketing strategies that will help the company achieve its overall strategic objectives. A detailed marketing plan is needed at the business, product, or brand level. An executive summary is the first step in the plan. It contains a brief summary of the main goals and recommendations of the plan for management review. The main section of the plan presents a detailed SWOT analysis of the current marketing situation, along with potential threats and opportunities. The plan then states major objectives for the brand and outlines the specifics of a marketing strategy for achieving them. In addition, action programs for implementing the marketing strategy along with the details of a supporting marketing budget are presented. The final section outlines the controls used to monitor progress and corrective action.

Armstrong, Marketing, Fifth Canadian Edition

132. Marketing departments are organized in several ways. Compare and contrast the most common forms of marketing organizations.

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-132

Page-Reference: 65–67

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-5

Answer: Some common forms of marketing department organization include functional organization, geographical organization, product management organization, and market management organization. Under a functional department organization, a functional specialist, such as a sales manager, advertising manager, or market research manager, is responsible for all marketing activities. Under a geographic organization, sales and marketing people are assigned to specific countries, regions, and districts. Product management organization first appeared at P&G in 1929. Under this approach, a product manager develops and implements a complete strategy and marketing program for a specific product or brand. Under a market or customer management organization, the company is organized around the needs of specific customer segments. In firms that use this organization, one product line is sold to many different types of markets and customers that have different needs and preferences. Finally, large companies that produce many products sold in many geographic areas typically use some combination of these organizational forms.

133. Briefly discuss how marketers measure return on marketing investment, explaining why this figure can be difficult to assess.

Difficulty: 3

QuestionID: 02-133

Page-Reference: 68–70

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-5

Answer: Marketing ROI (return on investment) is the net return from a marketing investment divided by the costs of the marketing investment. In other words, ROI is a measure of the profits generated by investments in a marketing activity. Marketing ROI can be difficult to assess because the benefits of marketing are not always easily translated in dollar amounts. However, marketing ROI can be assessed in terms of brand awareness, sales, or market share. Some companies are now using marketing dashboards, which are single displays showing several sets of marketing performance measures. And beyond standard performance measures, many marketers are using customer—centered measures such as customer acquisition, retention, and lifetime value.

134. Why should a mission statement be market oriented instead of product or technology oriented?

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-134

Page-Reference: 47

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-1

Answer: A market-oriented mission statement defines the business in terms of customer needs; products and technologies become outdated, but basic market needs may last forever.

135. Why should a mission statement be "motivating" instead of stated in terms of sales or profits?

Difficulty: 3

QuestionID: 02-135

Page-Reference: 47–48

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-2

Answer: Sales and profits are only a reward for undertaking a useful activity; a company's employees will be more dedicated to the company's mission if they feel that their work is significant.

136. What is a strategic business unit (SBU) and how is it involved in a business portfolio analysis?

Difficulty: 1

QuestionID: 02-136

Page-Reference: 49

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-2

Answer: An SBU is a key part of a company—whether a product, product line, department, or an entire division—that has its own mission and objectives. Identifying and analyzing a company's SBUs are the first two steps in business portfolio analysis.

147. Explain how a marketer of baking soda may attempt to attract more than one market segment.

Difficulty: 3

QuestionID: 02-147

Page-Reference: 57

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-4

Answer: Some consumers buy baking soda as a baking ingredient and some consumers buy baking soda to use as a deodorizer, for example. The marketer will focus on both distinct uses in the marketing mix, such as how the product is promoted.

148. How might a marketer of pens alter the "product" portion of the marketing mix when targeting female college students versus male college students?

Armstrong, Marketing, Fifth Canadian Edition
Test Item File

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-148
Page-Reference: 60
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-4

Answer: The marketer may use feminine colors and a spiral-flower stripe, for example, when marketing its pens to the females; when targeting males, the marketer might use more neutral colors.

149. What role does the marketing mix play in positioning?

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-149
Page-Reference: 58
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-4

Answer: The marketing mix components of product, price, place, and promotion are the tools that a company can use to differentiate its products from competitors' and to achieve strong positioning in a target market.

150. Why is marketing analysis such an important part of marketing management?

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-150
Page-Reference: 63
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-5

Answer: This function allows the marketer to analyze internal strengths and weaknesses as well as environmental opportunities and threats which, in turn, allows the marketer to match the company's strengths to opportunities to pursue. From this starting point, the market can continue with planning, implementation, and control.

151. In SWOT analysis, what is the difference between a weakness and a threat?

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-151
Page-Reference: 63
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-5

Answer: In SWOT analysis, weaknesses are internal factors that may interfere with a company's objectives, while threats are external factors that challenge the company.

152. Why is marketing implementation often difficult to carry out?

Difficulty: 2
QuestionID: 02-152
Page-Reference: 65
Skill: Application
Objective: 2-5

Armstrong, Marketing, Fifth Canadian Edition
Test Item File

Answer: While marketing planning may directly involve a small percentage of a firm's employees, marketing implementation must be carried out by people at all levels of the marketing system; the decisions employees make each day must be aligned with the marketing strategy.

153. Why are many marketers today using customer-centered measures of marketing ROI?

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-153

Page-Reference: 69–70

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-5

Answer: Companies are looking at marketing expenditures as investments in profitable customer relationships, with the goal of increasing individual customer lifetime values and overall customer equity.

154. Scenario

Fun-Spot Fun Park began as a small amusement park in 1985. Starting with nothing more than a merry-go-round, a slide, pony rides, and an ice cream stand, Fun-Spot grew into a popular family attraction with 20 rides, a restaurant, and an outdoor performing arts theater.

"My wife, Gail, and I didn't know what we were getting into," commented Ron Hart, the owner. "We just knew that weekenders coming to the lakes in our rural area represented an untapped market."

Today, thousands of visitors flock to Fun-Spot—families, children of all ages, and even senior citizens who enjoy strolling through the gardens and arbor.

"There's something here for everyone," Gail Hart said with a smile. "Dozens of companies hold annual company picnics here. We have welcomed class field trips. And we even had one wedding here at the park!"

"Here's the funny thing," Ron chimed in. "We really don't know why we've been so successful! There is nothing else like Fun-Spot Fun Park in the area. We were just lucky."

"I think it's the ambience of the park," Gail added, "that has brought so many visitors. We provide a 'total package' of entertainment. Plus, we try to change our rides and various attractions from time to time."

Ron and Gail Hart admitted that making every visitor happy is a priority. "That has always been our philosophy," they said. "And we've always been able to deliver on that because we've never allowed ourselves to grow too big too quickly."

Describe two critical factors affecting the strategic plan at Fun-Spot.

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-154

Page-Reference: 46

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-1

Answer: Answers will vary; however, Ron and Gail's continued success will depend on their ability to set and reach objectives that follow their company's mission, making visitors as happy as possible through a variety of entertainment options.

Would you consider Fun-Spot's mission statement to be market oriented? Explain.

Difficulty: 2

QuestionID: 02-155

Page-Reference: 47

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-1

Answer: The mission at Fun-Spot is defined in terms of customer needs, so it is market oriented. Providing the fastest roller coaster, the greatest variety of ice cream flavors, or the scariest spook house is not as important, for example, as providing top-notch customer attention and attractions appealing to a variety of visitors at this small, rural park.

At this point, how do Ron and Gail monitor Fun-Spot's business portfolio?

Difficulty: 3

QuestionID: 02-156

Page-Reference: 49

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-2

Answer: Ron and Gail make a continuous assessment of Fun-Spot's strengths and weaknesses, compared to the opportunities in the environment. If a competitor should appear within a relatively close distance, for example, Ron and Gail will likely have to alter the business portfolio to offset the competition.

What are three possible emerging conditions that may cause the Harts to develop a downsizing strategy at Fun-Spot?

Difficulty: 3

QuestionID: 02-160

Page-Reference: 53

Skill: Application

Objective: 2-2

Answer: Over time, less profitable operations might need to be eliminated; for example, children may love pony rides but maintaining the animals in a zoo setting may become costly. An economic recession or a new, close-by competitor may lead to downsizing.
