24. List the four models of communication and indicate which is best for today's workplace and briefly explain why.

ANSWER: 1) Communication as information transfer, 2) Communication as transactional process, 3) Communication as strategic control, and 4) Communication as dialogic process. Communication as dialogic process is best because of its focus on relationship and its inherent consideration of communication ethics. Students might also elaborate on the alignment between the characteristics of the dialogic model and the changing workplace environment, including flattening hierarchies, mergers, and increasing diversity. In addition, they may discuss how the dialogic model allows individuals across the organization to be leaders regardless of their position within the organization.

02 Foundations of Communication

25. What are the challenges to implementing a dialogic model of communication in today's workplace?

ANSWER: 1) An overly rigid view of one's identity or self-perception may lead to unwillingness to engage in dialog with others who have differing perspectives, 2) assumptions of the superiority of our own culture or ethnocentrism, and 3) assumptions about the universality of our own cultural beliefs.
Students might also discuss difficulties including inaccurate perceptions of the purpose of communication based on the transactional model, strategic control model, etc.
